A RETIRED BUSINESS WOMAN.

A Page From Her History.

The important experiences of others are interesting. The following is no exception: "I had been troubled with heart disease 25 years, much of that time very seriously. For five years I was treated by one physician continuously. I was in business, but obliged to retire on account of my health. A physician told my friends that I could not live a month. My feet and limbs were badly swollen, and I was indeed in a serious condition when a gentleman directed my attention to Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, and said that his sister, who had been afflicted with heart disease, had been cured by the remedy, and was again a strong, healthy woman. I purchased a bottle of the Heart Cure, and in less than an hour after taking the first dose I could feel a decided improvement in the circulation of my blood. When I had taken three doses I could move my ankles, something I had not done for months, and my limbs had been swollen so long that they seemed almost putrified. Before I had taken one bottle of the New Heart Cure the swelling had all gone down, and I was so much better that I did my own work. On my recommendation six others took this valuable remedy."—Mrs. McGowan, 509 W. Harrison St., Chicago, Ill.

NEGLECTED WIVES.

Very Many of Them Have No One to Blame But Themselves.

"I am not at all surprised," said a bright woman, "that some men find other women more attractive than their wives. In this age of progress and newspapers women who do not live up to the times must expect to be eclipsed by those who do. The 'Hannah Jane' theory set forth in Carleton's poem is exploded.

"The occasion for my disgust is that twice within the past week I have met wives who did not care for the frivolities of life, and whose husbands I did not blame for casting 'sheep's eyes' at more attractive women. The first woman came into the dining-room of a hotel in a western city. She evidently boarded at the place, and it was a really good hotel. Every other person in the dining-room was well dressed. Her husband was well dressed. She actually wore a wrapper, one such as is sold in the stores at ninety-eight cents apiece. It was of a dull peacock green color, with yellow rings in it, and intensified her sallowness. Her skin and hair had a neglected look, the latter brushed back so tightly that two thin places near her temples were plainly visible. Her whole appearance was of the 'don't care' order. The sooner she drops away from this mundane sphere the better it will be for the husband, whose eyes wandered often to the tables where sat other women, who were 'fixed up'.

"The other case was that of the president of a great trades union, with whom an interview was necessary. His home was sought towards evening. It was a neat brick house, the front closely shut up, and it actually became a necessity for the correspondent to attack the kitchen door before she found anyone. This 'anyone' proved to be the wife of the man, a young, black-eyed woman, with a neglected child clinging to her dress. She was, by all appearances, a born slattern. The interview was short and not interesting. The husband was sought in the office of the trades union of which he was chief officer. He was a grand surprise, as he was a man, not only of brawn and brain, but remarkably well dressed and thoroughly intelligent. He seemed rather suspicious, but thawed easily under genial influences. The truth inadvertently leaked out that he rarely got home until midnight. I did not wonder. I only wondered that he ever went home. I don't think I would have cared to go."—Cincinnati Tribune.

WINDOW FLY TRAP.

How to Rid a Room Successfully of the Troublesome Insects.

Flies are the pest and worry of all tidy housekeepers, and how to rid a room of them is an unsolved question to many. This is quite easily accomplished by taking advantage of the flies' habit of flying to the window or place from which light is admitted, and to accomplish this, darken all the windows with a heavy shade, or any material, cutting a hole in one of the shades, over which is firmly pinned a sheet of the common transparent fly paper, and, if possible, have this located at one of the east, south or west windows, from which the most light may be obtained. It will be but a short time ere the flies in the room will be sticking to this paper in their effort to be near the light. This is far easier and more cleanly than placing paper about the room for them to accidentally light upon, or killing them with poisoned liquid pyrethrum powder.—American Agriculturist.

Cheese and Fruit Sandwiches.

Have you ever tried cream cheese and fruit sandwiches? For these mash any fruit as you would the strawberries, flavoring and sweetening them to taste. Have ready some slices of bread (tiny scones or slim cakes are delicious for this) and lay on each a thin slice of pure cream cheese sprinkled with caster sugar, and on this again a layer of mashed fruit, and put them together, pressing them slightly on to each other. Cream cheese, either sweetened or not, is excellent as an accompaniment to fruit, and so of course is clotted or Devonshire cream.

THE LATEST IN BATHING ATTIRE.

This picture shows two of the newest bathing suits. One is of white polka dotted foulard with short skirt and loose trousers and a gathered cap to match. The other is a dark blue serge costume trimmed with white star braid. There is a close cap to wear with this, lined like the other, with oiled silk.

STEADY ADVANCE.

The Medical Education of Women in England During Recent Years.

Nothing can be regarded as more satisfactory than the steady advance which has been manifested by the London School of Medicine For Women. The last year's report shows that 13 students have passed in the various examinations at the University of London, a more than average proportion of whom took honors in anatomy, medicine and obstetrics, and several other students have passed their examinations at the University of Ireland, the Society of Apothecaries in London, and at the Scotch College of Physicians and Surgeons. It is also to be noted that, in the case of the male lecturers who have succeeded or resigned, their places have been filled by properly qualified women. In Scotland also a new medical school for women has been established, named after the founder—the Muirhead College For Women. About three years since Dr. Muirhead died, leaving the large sum of £24,000 for the purpose of erecting and endowing as far as practicable a college for the instruction of women in science, to fit them to become medical practitioners, dentists or scientific experts. This he desired to be situated near the Victoria infirmary, in order to afford facilities for clinical instruction. Dr. Muirhead, it appears, was an individual of very strong personality, and he insisted in his deed of settlement that this college was not to be called the Victoria college, after the infirmary with which it is associated, nor the Queen's college, after the Queen Margaret College For Women, which is already part and parcel of the Glasgow university, and he further stipulated that neither medical men nor clergymen were to act as trustees, and that no theological instruction was to be given.

It was hoped that the Muirhead endowment could be worked in conjunction with the Queen Margaret Medical college, now absorbed into the Glasgow university, and is, in fact, the women's department of that institution, but such was not found to be possible, and therefore the trustees of the proposed Muirhead college have determined to erect what must be regarded in some sense as a rival to Queen Margaret college. The University of Glasgow, having absorbed and assumed the entire control of the latter, desired to have the same power over the new Muirhead college and over its funds, conditions which the trustees refused to entertain. Consequently a difficulty exists, and no arrangement which would provide Glasgow with one strong medical school for women appears for the present to be practicable.

That some satisfactory arrangement will eventually be made with regard to the Muirhead College For Women is undoubted, and its establishment may be regarded as marking a distinct advance in the education of medical women. It is not without interest to trace the result of the movement for the education of women in medicine since the establishment of the London school, now more than 20 years ago. The number of duly qualified and registered medical women that have been educated, either wholly or partially, at this institution is 137. Of these nine have since died, but the great majority of the others are in practice not only in England, but in other parts of the world, more especially in India. Forty-one qualified women are also on the register who have not been students at the London school, making altogether a total approaching nearly 200 women, who are fulfilling the honorable duties of the profession that they have chosen.—London Queen.

Wilmington's New Century Club.

Another New Century club, that of Wilmington, Del., has its own house, built by its own members. This club has a membership of 450. No woman can become a member without taking at least one share of stock at $5. Some of the members hold 20 or more shares. The annual membership fee is $5, which admits members to all lectures, French and German classes, current events, dressmaking and so on. Eighteen hundred dollars is spent annually in lectures. The house commands a view of the city and surrounding country. It has an audience room, stage, parlors, committee rooms, a kitchen and two rooms on the ground floor rented as a drug store and restaurant.

Leaves a Good Record.

Dr. Callio Haynes, for the last four years the woman assistant physician on the staff of the Western State hospital of Virginia, has resigned her position. During her service there Dr. Haynes' efficiency has been recognized by the board by re-elections and by increase of salary. She is described as a woman of fine ability and of charming social qualities. She will make her permanent home at Staunton, Va. The Staunton Visindicator says that there will be several women candidates—three of them Virginians—before the board when the vacancy made by Dr. Haynes' resignation is filled.

The Very Oldest.

The oldest mother in Webster county, the oldest grandmother in Kentucky, the oldest great-grandmother in the history of the state of Kentucky, the oldest great-great-grandmother in the history of the United States, is Betsy Shelton, who is the mother of 14 children, the grandmother of 117 children, the great-grandmother of 282 children and great-great-grandmother of 19 children. She was born in North Carolina in 1798. She moved to Kentucky in 1816. Her husband died in 1867. She is still in moderate health.—Henderson (Ky.) Courier.

Women in Medicine.

Eight of the 53 graduates from the Woman's Medical college of Pennsylvania this year are from the south. The gold medal offered for the best report of the surgical clinics of the Woman's hospital was awarded to Miss Lorilla F. Bulard of Wheeling.

Not Important.

"Doctor, I want to know if you can pull a tooth for me right away?"
"Doctor—Certainly. Will you want something to kill the pain?"
"Oh, it doesn't matter. It's my husband's tooth."—Chicago Inner Ocean.

Earning His Living.

An old colored man, with his legs twisted about like corkscrews from rheumatism, and also partly paralyzed, sits on the step of the Austin courthouses and solicits alms.

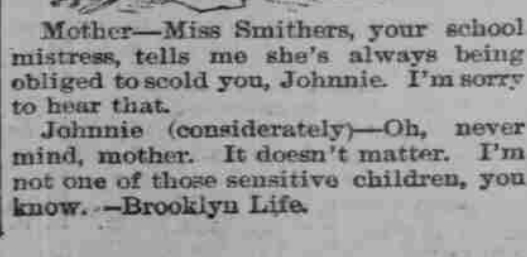

"You must have a pretty hard time of it, uncle," remarked a sympathetic stranger, handing him a nickel.
"Yes, boss, dat's a fact. Dar's six ob us in de family, and I've de only one able to get about and earn a libin."—Texas Siftings.

Hard to Understand.

Squidgie—I can't make out why young Sappy isn't more popular with the girls than he is.
McSwilligen—Neither can I. He is the most ladylike gentleman of my acquaintance.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

He Didn't Mind.

Mother—Miss Smithers, your school mistress, tells me she's always being obliged to scold you, Johnnie. I'm sorry to hear that.
Johnnie (considerately)—Oh, never mind, mother. It doesn't matter. I'm not one of those sensitive children, you know.—Brooklyn Life.
